

DELLAH BRADLEY ON HUNGER STRIKE

Despite Efforts on Part of Her Family, She Insists on Fasting.

EXPECTS FOSTER TO AID HER

Brother Makes Threats of Physical Violence Against Sister's Admirer.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Philadelphia, January 22.—Because her parents balked her desire to see Joel M. Foster, the wealthy poultryman, with whom she eloped to Mobile, Ala., Dellah Bradley, the Pemberton, N. J., school teacher, to-day started a hunger strike.

After being taken forcibly by her father, Harry E. Bradley, and detectives late yesterday from the Windsor Hotel, in this city, to Pemberton in an automobile, the young girl cried until she became exhausted and fell asleep about midnight. When she awoke this morning she refused to eat breakfast, and despite efforts on the part of the family, she insisted upon fasting.

Foster, who arrived in Philadelphia half an hour after the girl was forcibly taken away, boarded a train as if he were going to New York, but instead alighted at North Philadelphia and went to the Hotel Continental, where he spent the night. He was registered as F. T. Foster, of Georgia, and left early this morning with the purpose, it was reported, of going to Pemberton to try to see the girl.

The girl said she expected Foster to come to her aid. During the day she became violently hysterical and abused her parents. Her father warned her that unless she changed her tactics she would have her sent back to Mobile to stand trial on charges of improper conduct with Foster in that city.

Will Employ Detectives.

Mr. Bradley stated to-day that he would employ detectives to prevent Foster from meeting his daughter. The girl's brother to-day made threats of physical violence against Foster if he persists in his efforts to see the girl. "Foster has the reputation of being handy with his fists," said the brother. "It won't be long before he will try to take my sister out of the house. I will do something that will stop him from coming around."

It is said that should Foster come to Pemberton the Bradley family would have warrants issued to arrest him, but it is doubtful whether sufficient evidence could be furnished in order to hold him, as the girl would testify in her admirer's behalf.

It is said that the father of the girl has taken away all the clothing of the girl so that she could not get away from the house. The girl still persists in declaring her love for Foster.

Late to-day Detectives Tate and Luby, of the private agency employed by Mr. Bradley, reached Pemberton, accompanied by Assemblyman Robert Peacock, who is assistant prosecutor of the pleas of Burlington County. The three men went directly to the Bradley home, where they remained in a long conference.

Subsequently, it was announced, the conference would be continued to-day in the office of the prosecutor in Mount Holly.

When the men left the house the girl went into another rage, exclaiming hysterically:

"I want to get out of here. You have no right to keep me here, and I am going to get out somehow. I won't eat a single thing until you let me go."

When asked if his daughter was showing any signs of collapse, Mr. Bradley said:

"She is still very stubborn, but her condition otherwise is normal."

Virginians Nominated.
Washington, D. C., January 22.—President Wilson to-day nominated the following Virginians to the United States Senate:

A. B. Buchanan at Tazewell; C. N. Otey at Wytheville; Bert Russell at Damascus.

It was expected that a nomination would also be made for the position of collector of internal revenue for the Western District of Virginia, but this was not done.

SETTING UP SHOW OF CITY PRODUCTS

Manufacturers' Exhibit Will Be Completely Installed by February 16.

The 160 exhibits of Richmond-made goods, which will be permanently shown in the Manufacturers' Exhibit in the new Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers' Building, must all be installed and completed on Monday, February 16. That day has been selected by the board of directors as the occasion for the opening of the exhibit. More than twenty of the exhibits have already been set up on the exhibition floors, and present a creditable spectacle of the city's material prosperity.

The Manufacturers' Exhibit, planned to provide a lasting exhibition of products made in Richmond, has grown to such proportions since its conception that three entire floors in the new skyscraper at Sixth and Main streets have been leased to house it. Only a single floor was originally engaged, but the exhibit now occupies the second, third and fourth floors exclusively. There are more than 400 manufacturers in Richmond who have the right to exhibit their products in this show. About 100 of them have pledged their support to the project, and have either already set up exhibits or are now building them.

To Be Open Daily.

The Manufacturers' Exhibit is expected to prove of great advertising value when large conventions come to Richmond, and the delegates are shown concrete examples of the city's resources all gathered under one roof. After Monday, February 16, the exhibit will be open daily for the free admission of the public. The public school authorities are planning to make a visit to the exhibit a feature of the regular curriculum, with a view to giving the younger generation a concrete conception of the city's resources.

From the very nature of the proposition it follows that the exhibit being erected are both costly and impressive. Many firms have gone to large expense merely to secure an unusual design for an exhibit, while the value of the articles shown is of itself enormous.

Some time after the opening of the exhibit, the Chamber of Commerce will join with the Manufacturers' Exhibit in celebrating the formal opening of the new building. No such affair has been given by the Chamber since occupying its new quarters, the desire being to have the Manufacturers' Exhibit share in the housewarming.

Pretty Entertainment.

PLAN HEALTH DAY IN RURAL SCHOOLS

State Board and Educational Associations Inaugurate Sanitary Campaign.

Through the co-operation of the State Board of Health, the Co-Operative Education Association and the State Bureau of Rural Colored Schools of the Department of Public Instruction, plans have been formulated and have just been announced for the observance of Health Day during February in all the rural schools of the Commonwealth.

The leagues of the Co-Operative Education Association will devote their February meeting to the discussion of public health questions, and, in particular, to the consideration of methods by which the school buildings and surroundings can be made more sanitary. In the colored schools, the exercises will be held February 12, which is the date usually set aside in these schools for special celebrations.

For the use of the leagues and for the guidance of teachers who must direct the program, the State Board of Health has in preparation and will soon send to the press a special "Health Day Manual." This will contain full instructions for the observance of the day, together with suggestions for the better sanitation of schools.

In announcing the plans for Health Day, the State Board of Health, in its weekly bulletin, issued yesterday, pleads for the co-operation of all school authorities to make the day a success. Says the board: "We hope that the district school superintendents and all the teachers will join with us in our effort to make Health Day a success."

"The Co-Operative Education Association and Supervisor Jackson Davis, of the Department of Public Instruction, are working with us very earnestly, and are urging upon school authorities the possibilities of this celebration in Virginia. Our rural schools must be made sanitary and safe for our children. They must be made attractive and inspiring. They must be the center of an influence which will make itself felt throughout the community."

"In particular, we hope this day will be made the occasion for a movement that will bring sanitary conveniences to all our rural schools. At present, hundreds of our schools are without these, and, in consequence, become the agents for the spread of communicable disease. We believe that if the school patrons and the children learn how much the sanitation and convenience of rural schools can be improved at a small expenditure, they will unite to make the necessary improvements."

"The board realizes, in addition, that much of the fight for better health in Virginia must be waged by the children. They must apply the principles which experience has shown to be of value. Accordingly, we believe that the instruction of our school children in even the fundamentals of sanitation is a service infinitely worth while."

"The board hopes that school authorities who wish copies of the new Health Manual will notify us promptly. We shall make the edition as large as our funds will permit, but want the assurance of those who write for the manual that these will be used to the best advantage."

HODGES IS ACQUITTED.

Roonoke Insurance Solicitor Freed After Short Consideration by Jury.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Roonoke, Va., January 22.—One of the most interesting and in many respects complicated cases in the history of Roonoke courts was concluded in dramatic manner this afternoon when a jury of twelve men brought in a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of the Commonwealth against Daniel M. Hodges, an insurance solicitor, charged with larceny and forgery of numerous notes. The jury was out twenty-five minutes, and it is said had no difficulty in arriving at a unanimous verdict of acquittal.

Hodges's wife, a brunette of charming personality, who has been by his side every instant since his arrest three days ago, was at her post when the verdict was read, and husband and wife embraced affectionately when they realized the import of the message.

In an instant Hodges was the center of a happy throng as his friends by the score pressed forward to shake his hand and offer congratulations. Many spectators were deeply affected by the scene.

DANIELS EXPRESSES CONFIDENT OPTIMISM

Declares Country Already Convinced There Is to Be No "Business Panic."

New York, January 22.—Confident optimism of the administration over the outlook for commercial and industrial prosperity under Democratic rule was voiced here to-night by Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, in an address before the Brooklyn Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. The secretary declared the country already had been convinced there was to be no "business panics" in 1914.

"The initial beneficial effects of the tariffs and currency measures," he said, "as well as the President's reassuring words as to the intent of past and pending legislation, have assured the country; but may we not see in the enthusiastic way in which the country, apart from party and apart from partisanship, is rallying to the support of the President something of that enthusiasm which every very great leader inspires? Convinced of his high ideals and thrilled with the success achieved in the passage of two great pieces of legislation within a twelve-month, men of all parties place Americanism above partisan politics and uphold the hands of the chief executive of the nation who speaks for men of all faiths and creeds."

The secretary declared that "the fact that there now are five parties has made an ending of the period when politics was war. It now is rather an emulation of competition to see what party can, by its record, convince the voters that it is the best instrument of public service; and that is the best."

"Two parties were all that were needed when our national life was less complex and simpler problems pressed for solution," he added, "but to-day there are such divergent views and such varying political creeds that men who believe in those opposing views cannot find a congenial home in either of the two old parties."

"Nothing could be more stifling or injurious to the best public service than to say to men who do not agree with either party that they must accept what would be to them the lesser of two evils. The American voters to-day refuse to ally themselves under any party, unless it symbolizes political doctrines that win their approval."

MANN COMMUTES DEATH SENTENCE

Governor Softens Pollard's Penalty From Execution to Life Imprisonment.

Governor Mann yesterday commuted the sentence of Richmond Pollard, colored, who was sentenced to die in the electric chair on February 13 for the murder of Jim Chappel, an aged negro of Blackstone, from the death penalty to life imprisonment. In signing the commutation of the Governor said that he had been influenced in his action by the advice of Judge Southall and many prominent citizens of Blackstone. Judge Southall expressed the written opinion that Pollard is not deserving of the extreme penalty, while life imprisonment would condemn him to a life of suffering.

According to the representations made in the petitions for clemency, Pollard is ordinarily of an amiable disposition, well thought of in the community, and slow to anger. At the time of his crime, say his friends, he was inflamed by drink and rendered temporarily insane by a personal controversy with the man he finally killed.

On June 7, 1913, Pollard shot and instantly killed Chappel, who was seventy-six years old, in a rough and tumble fight in Pollard's shoeshop. Pollard was engaged in repairing some shoes for Chappel, and when the latter

Not "Raised" with Yeast—

You can "raise" a loaf of white flour bread with yeast—but you can't "raise" healthy, robust American youngsters in that way. The best food for growing boys and girls is

Shredded Wheat

It contains no yeast, no fats, no chemicals of any kind—just pure whole wheat, steam-cooked, shredded and baked. The crisp, brown Biscuits are not only deliciously appetizing, but they encourage thorough chewing, which makes them better than porridges for growing youngsters. Ask your grocer.

Always heat the Biscuit in oven to restore crispness. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with hot milk or cream will supply all the energy needed for a half day's work. Deliciously nourishing when eaten in combination with baked apples, stewed prunes, sliced bananas or canned or preserved fruits. Try toasted Triscuit, the Shredded Wheat wafer, for luncheon with butter, cheese or marmalade.

came for them, he had not completed the work. This led to hot words and finally to blows. Chappel was thrown out of the shop by Pollard, who, by that time, was in a towering rage, and told that he would be killed if he entered again. Chappel, however, did venture back into the shop, and in the ensuing fight was shot in the temple.

Pollard was found guilty of murder in the first degree at his trial in the Circuit Court of Nottoway County, and sentenced by Judge Southall to be executed.

Vaudeville Manager Fined.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Greensboro, N. C., January 22.—Manager C. C. Collins, of the Bijou Theatre, was fined $25 in Municipal Court to-day for permitting what was alleged to be an indecent and vulgar vaudeville act in his playhouse on Saturday night. The Mayor and other prominent citizens were witnesses. He appealed to Superior Court.

Woman Fatally Burned.
Mrs. C. N. Martin, of Winston-Salem, in Hopeless Condition.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Winston-Salem, N. C., January 22.—Mrs. C. N. Martin, wife of the manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company here, was perhaps fatally burned at her home on Ninth Street last night. She was sitting by the grate fire near a crib, in which her young baby was sleeping, when her dress caught fire.

A colored girl, who was in the room, saw the dress ignite, and told Mrs. Martin. The dress was of a very inflammable material, and the flames spread so rapidly that she became alarmed with fright and ran out into the yard, where the wind soon caused the clothing to be burned entirely off the unfortunate woman. Her condition to-night is regarded as hopeless.
